

Prof. Dr. Jeffrey Andrew Barash, Université de Picardie, France

Jeffrey Andrew Barash is Emeritus Professor of Philosophy at the University of Amiens, France. He obtained his doctorate at the University of Chicago and his Habilitation à Diriger des Recherches en Philosophie at the University of Paris Ouest–Nanterre. He has taught as a guest professor at the University of Hamburg and Boston College. He has served as Mellon Fellow at the Society of Fellows in Humanities at Columbia University, Humboldt Fellow at the University of Bielefeld, Jean Monnet Fellow at the European University Institute, Max-Planck Fellow at the University of Konstanz, and Fellow at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton. His publications have focused on the themes of collective memory and its modern articulations, political philosophy, historicism, and modern German thought. He is the author of several books: Heidegger et son siècle. Temps de l'Être, temps de l'histoire (Paris: Presses Universitaires de France, 1995), Martin Heidegger and the Problem of Historical Meaning (second, paperback edition, New York: Fordham University Press, 2003), and Politiques de l'histoire. L'historicisme comme promesse et comme mythe (Paris: Presses Universitaires de France, 2004). His most recent book, Collective Memory and the Historical Past, was published by the University of Chicago Press in November 2016. He has also edited a book entitled, The Social Construction of Reality: The Legacy of Ernst Cassirer (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2008). Jeffrey Andrew Barash is preparing a new work at present on philosophical theories of political myth in relation to recent developments in the mass media.
